

Person-centered and experiential psychotherapy and counseling: Bibliographical survey of BOOKS 2000-2009 [all languages]

Editor: Germain Lietaer

This survey of recent BOOKS (and doctoral dissertations) contains two parts.

PART A includes all books (since 2000) which refer to client/person-centered psychotherapy and counseling AND its experiential offspring: focusing-oriented and process-experiential/emotion-focused psychotherapy.

PART B includes books of the broader humanistic family and books of other orientations with some affinity to the client-centered/experiential approach. We think they are of special interest within the context of our endeavor to come to an intensive dialogue (and crossfertilization) with the broader psychotherapy landscape. The main approaches covered under Part B are existential, interpersonal, Gestalt, narrative-constructivistic, feminist, experiential action and non-verbal methods, and integrative/eclectic with major client-centered input.

I thank Alberto Segrera, Jean-Marc Priels, Alberto Zucconi, Magda Draskoczy and Yukishige Nakata for sending me references of Books in Spanish & Portuguese, French, Italian, Hungarian and Japanese.

If you know of books which are not yet included in one of these two parts, please send me (germain.lietaer@psy.kuleuven.be) the (exact) reference! Thanks.

A survey of BOOKS 1939-1999 is available on the websites of WAPCEPC (www.pce-world.org, see under: Bibliographies/PCE bibliographies/Bibl. by Germain Lietaer, 1997-1999, special section on Books) and VVCEPC (www.vvcepc.be, see under: Literatuur/Bibliografie/International bibl. 1997-1999).
